Execution Is Not Enough: Move Toward Empowerment

HR and talent management practitioners are faced today with daunting challenges. Workforces are changing quickly—hierarchies are flatter, career paths are no longer linear, workers are more geographically dispersed, and generational differences are as sharp as ever. Ensuring that you have the right people with the right skills in the right roles and at the right time has a serious impact on your organization's ability to execute and grow.

Sage helps organizations of all sizes and in all industries to improve Return On Employee Investment (ROEI)[™] by increasing employee engagement, productivity, retention, and alignment with organizational goals. It's that simple. The Sage HRMS approach is based on three concepts:

- 1. An integrated approach to talent management drives better bottom-line results for your organization. This means having all the components of talent management under the same roof, presented in the same user interface, reportable from the same reporting tools, and administered in a highly flexible way.
- 2. Learning drives performance at every turn in Cornerstone, because business alignment alone and performance appraisal in isolation are not good enough. Training and development make performance appraisal actionable, succession planning meaningful, and career pathing functional.
- 3. Talent Management for Sage HRMS powered by Cornerstone OnDemand is a unique combination of on-premise HRMS and Cornerstone's multitenant Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) talent management solution. Your favorite HRMS solution is now integrated with industry-leading talent management software, all designed for midsized organizations.

Talent Management for Sage HRMS covers the employee lifecycle, from onboarding through learning management and performance measurement to succession planning (and even outside to your customers and partners).

Start with the full suite or use either of the two components for learning management or performance management separately. Choose a talent management system that can grow with your needs.

TALENT CHALLENGES

- Which employees are best positioned for leadership roles?
- Our end-of-year performance review isn't working. How can we make performance measurement more meaningful?
- What data do we need to build a real pay-for-performance culture?
- How can we use talent pooling and succession plans to build a company that can better respond to change?
- How can we give employees input into career development?
- How can we extend our training and certification programs to customers and partners?
